EVENT REPORT

Promoting a culture of learning and one of inquiry as well as questioning, begins with teachers, who then translate it after listening to all the students' points of view. It helps them to work productively and at ease with different perspectives and engaging the disengaged.

The teachers of G.D Goenka, Sarita Vihar attended a workshop led by Mrs. Anuradha Sinha on January 11, 2018 and were made to undergo various classroom situations and analyze their own learning styles to empathize with and nurture the same development among the students. The facilitator made the teachers reflect upon the following topics-

- Importance of being a 'facilitator'
- Science of learning
- Modern classroom setting
- Apt attitude towards the young learners

As the workshop progressed, some interesting research reports and the structure and functioning of the brain were discussed, after which, the teachers were made to participate in fun activities that helped them to understand the need of different students. The session was genuinely enlightening and helpful.
